Foam is extremely light as it is approximately 98 percent air, and therefore makes an ideal packaging product. It can also be moulded into an infinite variety of shapes and designs. Foam is an excellent shock absorber as well as being clean and safe to use. It can be treated so as to be anti-static and is therefore an excellent packaging material for electronics and computer components.